Kim Houlné, President of Working Solutions, is listed among the “25 Women in the Spotlight” by Women for Hire magazine. Her leadership profile appears in the Spring 2007 edition of Women for Hire.

The “25 Women in the Spotlight” celebrates successful women who are making a difference in business and society. It recognizes the up-and-coming women whose vision and talent are revolutionizing the workplace for the twenty-first century.

According to Kristin Kanger, Working Solutions’ Corporate Human Resources Manager, Kim is a worthy recipient of this honor. “Kim had a vision to create a virtual company that offered call center and transcription services real time. Her results are unparalleled; they have allowed talented independent contractors, as well as her employees all over the US, to benefit from the opportunity to balance work and family life.”

Raised in the Atlanta area, Kim Houlné graduated from the University of Georgia with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communications and has completed course work at Harvard University and Rockhurst University. She founded Working Solutions in 1996 for professionals seeking work-from-home marketing projects.
